Slack was an honoree at the conference, where the Secretary praised Schramm for the company's efforts in the Chile Mine Rescue. In his speech Locke commented: "Thanks in large part to Schramm's T-130 rig – now dubbed 'the rig heard 'round the world' – the miners were rescued two months earlier than originally planned."

Locke mentioned the administration's efforts to grow jobs, the economy and U.S. exports through the National Export Initiative. Schramm, Inc. conducts over 70% of its business overseas. "There are companies of all sizes like Schramm all across America producing goods and services that are in great demand by 95% of the world's consumers who live outside our borders," Locke said.

Schramm is a client of the Commerce Department's Commercial Service within the International Trade Administration (ITA).
